Hospital Standardization
Subject of First Sessions of American College Today—Extensive Program of Clinics Tomorrow.

HOW DEATH RATE
HAS BEEN REDUCED
Reduction from 9 to 3 Pct.
in 15 Years Through Improved Practices at Institutions, Dr. Franklin
Martin Says.

The hospital death rate in the United States has been reduced from 9 per cent to 3 per cent in 15 years, Dr. Franklin H. Martin, Chicago, director-general of the American College of Surgeons, reported at the opening session of its annual hospital standardization conference today at Hotel Jefferson.

About 350 persons attended the opening of the conference, held in connection with the twenty-second annual Clinical Congress which will open with the presidential meeting tonight at the Jefferson. The College has limited registration for the congress to 2500, with sessions to be held Saturday and Sunday at the Jefferson, and an extensive program of clinics in 28 St. Louis hospitals. Registration had reached 1500 an hour before today's session began.

Dr. Martin, announcing the 1932 "approved" list of hospitals for the information of the public, commented that only 89 hospitals in the United States and Canada met his requirements. The list, he said, has covered 2294. The colleges he explained, conducts a "continuous inspection" of hospitals of beds or more, and approves only those adequately equipped, with physicians who were graduated from reputable schools and abstain from such "unethical practices as he-splitting."

Stay in Hospital Reduced.

"Stay in the number of lives saved has been tripled in 15 years," said Dr. Martin. "The average stay for a patient in a hospital has been cut in two. These economies in human life and in productive time have been due in large measure to the higher standards maintained by hospitals through compliance with the requirements formulated by the American College of Surgeons."

The hospitals in the list, this year for the first time, were new to the "fully approved" list of 23 hospitals in St. Louis and St. Louis County. They were the City Sanitarium, Isolation Hospital and Koch Hospital. City Hospital No. 1 for Negroes, was "conditioned" pending completion of its new quarters.

In reporting the list, Dr. Martin commented: "We must guard ourselves against the subtle commercialism of some of our own conferences. The college has found no more dependable protection against fee-splitting than the influence of the staffs and superintendents of our approved hospitals. Persistent rumors of division of fees emanating from approved hospitals, are immediately followed up by the college. The particular hospital is apprised of the rumors, asked to investigate, and to act if the suspicions are confirmed. Dissemination of rumors to the staff is indeed effective in eliminating a recalcitrant member."

If the hospital is indifferent, fails to investigate rumors, and fails to act, the college, or if the college is not satisfied that the investigation has been adequate, there is but one choice—the college must deal summarily with the individual."

For Change in Veterans' Aid.

Wide-spread attacks on the Veterans' Bureau were taken up by Dr. Martin, who commented: "There are several thousand general and community hospitals with well-organized staffs of physicians, surgeons and specialists, in which the soldiers and sailors could be properly and conveniently cared for in their respective communities by their own doctors and consultants—and at much less expense to the Government than by the present program, which involves huge expenditures for new buildings and other departmental disbursements."

It is alleged that an average of two-thirds to three-fourths of the patients in Veterans' Administration hospitals and clinics are suffering from diseases and disabilities that are in no way traceable to war.

MASONIC TEMPLE
SECRETARY KILLED
BY ONE-MAN CAR

James M. Jones, 79 Years
Old, Hit on Kirkwood-
Ferguson Line Near
Washington University.

James M. Jones, 79 years old, secretary of the Masonic Temple Association, was killed about 7:30 this morning when struck by a one-man Kirkwood-Ferguson street car at the Trinity avenue crossing in University City, across from the Washington University campus.

The accident was witnessed by his son-in-law, Ray A. Burns, who lives at the Jones home, 6516 Pershing avenue, University City. Burns had left home a few minutes ahead of his father-in-law and was waiting for a street car on the south side of the tracks.

As Jones started across the tracks, Burns said, he was struck by a westbound car, and dragged 50 feet down the right of way. The sun was shining directly in the face of Jones, Burns said, and he thought for that reason his car had not seen the street car on the south side of the tracks.

At 6:30 a.m. yesterday morning, Burns returned home and obtained an automobile in which he took his father-in-law to St. Mary's Hospital, where he was pronounced dead of a fractured skull.

The boy, with his mother and sister and several relatives, had been picking wild flowers yesterday afternoon on the outskirts of Mascoutah. On their way back to Milton Epling's home about 5 p.m. they were thrown against the windshield, suffering severe scalp lacerations. A druggist treated her injuries and they continued on to the hospital.

Howard, holding the hand of his mother, thought he saw a chance to cross and called to her, "Let's go!"

The mother saw an automobile approaching, but the boy broke away from her and darted into its path.

The driver of the automobile, who had been following the boy, which took him to the hospital and after calling them, went to the Sheriff's office at Belleville. He had an office.

The operator of the car was Charles Harper, 6306 Suburban avenue. He continued on his run after Jones had been taken to the hospital and reported to University City police later.

He was placed under bond for the coroner.

ROSA PONSELLE HALTS SONG

Worry Over Sick Mother Interrupts "Home, Sweet Home."

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Miss Libby Miller, secretary to Rosa Ponselle, Metropolitan Opera star, said today the singer was forced to interrupt her singing of "Home, Sweet Home" during a concert at Hartford, Conn., yesterday because of worry over the condition of her mother.

Reports from Hartford said Miss Ponselle had been ill for several days and was unable to sing. She had been staying with her mother, who is ill, on Saturday night and attempted to cheer her up, Miss Miller said. "She was worried and fatigued and was so reminded of her mother's condition during the rendition of the song that she had to retire."

WIFE KILLS SELF AND CHILDREN TO AID HER HUSBAND

Nearly Puts End to His Life,

Gas in Home at Mineola,

By the Associated Press.
MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Mrs. Guy Phillips and her two children were found dead of gas in their Woodmere home today and the District Attorney expressed the opinion that Mrs. Phillips had killed herself and the children "it put before the chase began.

If this was Mrs. Phillips' plan, it almost caused the death of her husband as well.

Phillips, a dramatic coach, first met his wife when he was studying in England. He gave the first warning of the tragedy to police.

Phillips, 35 years old, had been named defendant less than two weeks ago in a $50,000 alienation suit filed by Joseph Seltzer, a salesman, also a resident of Woodmere. Phillips was free in $1500 bail in connection with the suit.

Last night, the District Attorney learned Mrs. Seltzer was a dinner guest at the Phillips' home, at which he said Phillips was discussing his divorce with both families so that Phillips and Mrs. Seltzer could marry. Seltzer was said to have been invited to the dinner conference.

Wife's Advice at Dinner.

One of the last things Mrs. Phillips said at the dinner, the District Attorney said, was: "Make up your mind what you want to do and don't change it."

After the dinner Phillips walked home with Mrs. Seltzer and then returned to his own home. The door of the room where Mrs. Phillips slept with one child and the door of the room where the other child slept was closed, he told the District Attorney, and he went to sleep in a front room.

About 7 o'clock this morning he closed the doors which had been closed last night standing open and gas pouring from several jets.

He closed the jets, he said, and then telephoned police. A policeman found Phillips, clad in pajamas and a bath robe, unconscious and with gas. The body of 32-year-old Mrs. Phillips was found in her bedroom, fully clothed, including a street coat. On the bed was the body of their nine-year-old daughter, Norma, and on the floor of another bedroom, in which Phillips was found, was the body of the couple's 10-year-old son, Christopher.

The island, a sand bar overgrown with willows, affords them not the slightest chance of concealment, so that even a Deputy Sheriff, untroubled in the ways of jungle beasts, found and killed them without much trouble.

CATHOLIC GROUPS ASSENT TO UNITED RELIEF CAMPAIGN

Plan to Join Community Fund Approved at Meeting of 600 Laymen and Pastors of 124 Churches.

PROPOSAL ALREADY ACCEPTED BY JEWS

Joint Committee Holds First of Executive Meetings to Prepare for $3,900,000 Appeal.

A united campaign in behalf of Catholic, Jewish and Community Fund relief agencies became assured last night when the proposal was accepted by directors of the Catholic Charities. Assent had been given previously by the Jewish Federation directors and trustees of the Community Fund.

The campaign will be conducted early in December, and the goal will be about $3,900,000. Only relief agencies, including hospitals, orphan asylums, homes for the aged and similar institutions will participate.

Catholic Committee Named.

About 600 laymen and pastors of the 124 Catholic churches in St. Louis and the county attended the meeting at the New Cathedral School Hall at which the proposal for a joint campaign was approved. Archbishop Glennon spoke, urging that the plan be accepted. In the present emergency, he said, united action was needed to meet the needs of the poor and distressed.

"It behoves the laborer is worthy of his hire. Labor should have fair treatment."

"I am inexperienced in politics. My idea of the duty of a public officer is to serve the people. My appointments will not be dictated by anybody. I shall consult honorable men, but I shall make the appointments."

On farm legislation, I shall consult practical agricultural and representative farm organizations."

Would Encourage Business.

"Legitimate business should be fostered and encouraged and should not be disturbed by legislation that will hinder and hamper it."

A Committee was appointed to represent the Catholic Charities in the joint campaign organization. Its members are William L. Igoe, John E. Riley, Thomas O. Moloney, F. P. Kenkel, J. Harry Rehme, and the Rev. John J. Butler.

Igoe, president of St. Vincent de Paul Society, is a member of the committee of three which drafted plans for the joint campaign. The other members are Sidney Mairrie, president of the Community Fund, and Asaro Raub, president of the Jewish Federation.

Campaign Group Meets.

The joint campaign committee today held the first of a series of executive meetings at which the agencies which will participate are to be selected and agreements reached concerning how much is to be allotted to each agency.

Mayor Miller's Committee of Seventy-One proposed the joint appeal for relief funds last summer as one of the measures needed to deal adequately with the crisis in relief work. Another recommendation of the Committee of Seventy-One, the $4,600,000 relief bond issue, will be submitted to voters Nov. 8.

Miss Blanche Renard Named Director of Jewish Federation.

Miss Blanche Renard, formerly office manager of the Community Fund, has been appointed executive director of the Jewish Federation, succeeding Ferdinand M. Bach, who was named assistant director.

Miss Renard has been identified with several St. Louis social agencies and is a former president of the St. Louis Council of Social work.

law. There is no past. We must search all together, all of us, for the relief of the people of Missouri, not only the Democrats but the rank and file of the Republican party as well.

"I think it proper that I should outline briefly a few of the things in which I believe and which will be my policy as Governor."

"First we must cut out expenses of this State and relieve the taxpayers of his burden. Twelve years ago, when the last Democratic Governor left this capitol, one of the greatest Governors this State ever had, the State was out of debt and more than $5,000,000 was in the treasury. When the next Legislature meets there will be a deficit of nearly $12,000,000."

"Our continuing expenses we should begin in this very capital. We have too much hired help. We must discharge some of it and not employ others to take their places. I do not think that the burden of supporting an official's whole family should be placed upon the taxpayers."

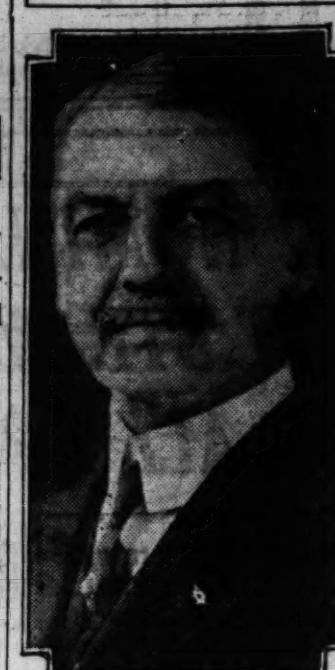

"I will also say that no political machine will be built up during my administration. At its conclusion the employees of the State will no longer be used to dictate who shall be my successor in office."

"I am a stranger to most of you. I haven't mixed in politics. I have been on the bench, serving as Circuit Judge and not as an Attorney General or as an prosecuting Attorney. It is my belief that Judge will take an interest in prosecutions, who ferret out evidence and aids the Prosecuting Attorney behind the screen is not fit to be Judge."

"Public Utilities Policy."

"As Governor it will be my duty to appoint members of the Public Service Commission. It is my belief that public utilities are and must be servants of the people. It ought not to be possible for an Insull to occur in Missouri. I believe that public service corporations should have fair treatment and a just return on their actual investment, but they should not be permitted to sell worthless securities to an unsuspecting public."

"In appointing members of the Public Service Commission it will be my purpose to select men who are honest and disinterested."

"It behoves the laborer is worthy of his hire. Labor should have fair treatment."

"I am inexperienced in politics. My idea of the duty of a public officer is to serve the people. My appointments will not be dictated by anybody. I shall consult honorable men, but I shall make the appointments."

FORD ASKS EMPLOYEES TO VOTE FOR HOOVER

"Any Break in His Program Would Hurt Industry and Employment," Message Says.

By the Associated Press
DETROIT, Oct. 17.—In a message to its employees throughout the country, the Ford Motor Co. today advocated the re-election of President Hoover and declared that "any break in his program would hurt industry."

The statement, which was placed before employees of the River Rouge plant here and mailed to Ford offices throughout the country, said that "President Hoover has overcome the forces that almost destroyed industry and employment. His efforts to start the country back to work are beginning to show results."

"We are convinced that any break in his program would hurt industry and employment. To prevent times from getting worse and to help them to get better, President Hoover must be re-elected."

"These are our convictions and we submit them to the serious consideration of all Ford employees throughout the country and their families."

STOCKHOLM STENCH BOMBS GREET 'GREEN PASTURES'

Tomatoes and Stones Also Thrown at Players in Demonstration by Silence.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 17.—Decayed tomatoes, stench bombs and stones were thrown on the stage during performance of the Pulitzer prize-winning play, "Green Pastures," here Saturday night. The demonstration was a protest against what was termed "religious lampoonery."

The missiles were thrown during the first act of the play by the audience. One actress was injured by a stone.

As if at a signal, several members of the audience in the second and third rows began to bombard the players. Police were called to restore order. They arrested one man. He was a young fisherman, and a handbill taken from him read in part:

"Sweden, awake in protest against the system which tolerates such religious lampoonery as we witnessed here and the present decay of culture."

"Green Pastures" has been running about a week, and has been generally well received.

The show played last night to a full house under police protection. All members of the Stockholm cast are Swedes.

3000 AT BURIAL OF SLAIN MINER AT TAYLORVILLE

3000 Persons Had Attended Funeral Services Previously in Public Square at Pawnee, Ill.

MILITIA WITHDRAWS DURING CEREMONY

Companies Then March Down Street of Christian County Capital and Resume Patrols.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Oct. 17.—About 3000 persons assembled in Oak Hill Cemetery here yesterday for the burial of Andrew Ganis, striking miner who was shot and killed by a National Guard Corporal last Thursday when he resisted.

The National Guard, which will have been here for the funeral, will be withdrawn at the conclusion of the services at 5 o'clock. However, as the first of the 3000 left the cemetery, seven companies of the 130th Infantry, 404 strong, marched down Market street toward the public square, their rifles agleam in the afternoon sun.

A block from the square they took ranks, rode out on the city streets, then headed out of Christian County, while the rest remained at the barracks in reserve against the possibility of trouble.

There was a brisk, military air about officers and men as they marched along the brick pavement of Market street. Two guardmen had been fired on by snipers in the past few days, and one, patrolling alone, was beaten almost into a pulp.

"Swedes, awake in protest against the system which tolerates such religious lampoonery as we witnessed here and the present decay of culture."

"Green Pastures" has been running about a week, and has been generally well received.

SHOTS STOP RUSH OF 475 CONVICTS FOR GATE; 24 HIT FATHER OF SEVEN, JOBLESS, IS FOUND DEAD IN BASEMENT

Alabama Prisoners Make Dash for Liberty After One Prisoner Is Killed in Escape Attempt.

By the Associated Press
MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 17.—A riot in the Singletown State prison, 20 miles from here, was cut short yesterday when guards fired on convicts, killing one and wounding 24 others. The quick-thinking warden subdued a group of convicts with a scrub brush. One prisoner escaped.

The uprising occurred during the recreation hour after Carl Singleton, 18-year-old Jefferson County convict, led 14 fellow inmates in a dash for liberty against the west fence of the prison inclosure. Singleton fell fatally wounded in the first volley from the guards.

He died at 9:30 a.m. and in the meantime the prison authorities reached the entrance as Singleton's body was brought through the main gate on a stretcher. The guards fired, 24 fell wounded and the convicts dropped back.

Meanwhile, the 14 who followed Singleton ran across an outer yard of the prison only to encounter gray-haired Warder A. B. Singletown, who had been shot in the foot during the dash. He calmly stood on his feet in a pocket of the fence group.

"All right, boys, you can walk with me or go in like that follow on the ground."

Ten turned back but four continued their flight. The warden's only weapon, he said later, was a scrub brush hastily snatched from his automobile and thrust in his pocket.

Police of the four who fled were tracked down by bloodhounds but Reuben Pittman, 16, Montgomery County prisoner, escaped. Only one of the wounded, John Hill, a Negro, was reported in grave condition.

Authorities reported the situation well in hand last night with all the convicts back in their cells but a pervading restlessness caused a heavy guard to be maintained.

Alabama has an honor parole law which parole of convicts for good behavior, Christians vaccinations for the honor prisoners and similar rewards.

As has been told, the Progressive Miners of America was formed by members of the United Mine Workers of America who objected to their officers' signing a contract with the coal operators that union members would work for the $5 basic daily wage scale instead of the $6.10 rate which the Progressive forces wanted to keep.

Early this month the Progressives accepted the $5 scale.

Finally, at a signal from the undertakers, the band broke into "Nearer, My God, to Thee," the Rev. D. J. Dundas, pastor of the Kincaid Methodist Church at Kincaid started forward, reading aloud from a Bible and the pallbearers lifted the gray plush casket from the hearse.

Honorary pallbearers assisted Mrs. Ganis and the slain digger's two children from an automobile and they started for the grave behind the grave. Mrs. Ganis crying aloud, "Oh, my daddy, Oh, my daddy," Andrew Jr., 13, the youngest child, crooked quietly and tried to push aside the supporting pallbearers. Only once did the Rev. Mr. Dundas' voice rise above the cries of Mrs. Ganis. Then he stopped, looking through the valley of the shadow.

At the grave, members of the family were seated. The Rev. Mr. Dundas stood facing them, and prayed informally. Before his gaze stood a gray granite pillar with the life-size figure of a coal digger on it. It is the monument to Charles Franklin Bilyeu, who according to the graven words on the pillar, "Laid His Life Fighting for Industrial Liberty at Virden, Ill., Oct. 12, 1908."

It was after the death of Bilyeu and several others in the Virden riot of '08, that the eight-hour day was adopted.

Progressive Leader Speaks.

Claude Pearcey, president of the Progressives, then spoke briefly, gesticulating at the slowly sinking casket. "This is the first time we have seen this," he said. "First there was Joe Colbert (slain in St. Louis County at the Orient Mine), then there was Dominic Laurenti (killed by deputy sheriffs from Clifford C. Rens, lawyer and member of the State Legislature. She charged general indignities. Rens did not contest. They were married on May 6, 1927, and separated Sept. 14 last.

"Gone," he said a moment later. "This could all be solved so easily. You know, we're not striking miners any more. We're members of the Progressive Union, wanting to go to work, and this could all be straightened out by putting every man back to work. Let them vote again on whether they want to recognize the Progressive Miners of America."

"I think, too, the company would want to put the men back. They're not getting out much coal for the

16-MONTH-OLD BOY DROWNS IN WASH TUB IN HOME

Mother Finds Body When She Enters Kitchen During Search For Child.

Robert, 16-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Conor of 3121 Caroline street, was drowned in a wash tub of water in the kitchen of their home today while his mother was preparing to do the family washing.

The child was playing on the back porch when Mrs. O'Conor filled the tub half full of water and set it on the kitchen floor. Then noticing the child had disappeared, apparently, from the porch and back yard, she hurried to the front of the house to learn if he had got into the street. When she returned to the kitchen, the child was in the tub.

He was taken to City Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Gifford C. Rens Divorced.

A divorce was granted by Circuit Judge Lawrence today to Mrs. Alice Rens of 4767 Millett's avenue from Clifford C. Rens, lawyer and member of the State Legislature.

She charged general indignities.

Rens did not contest. They were married on May 6, 1927, and separated Sept. 14 last.

Mr. Agnes Byrnes Wicks of Belleville stepped before the group of spectators to address the funeral crowd as "the wife of a miner and the daughter of a miner."

"She wore a plainly cut black wool suit, flat-heeled shoes and a maroon beret.

"If Andrew Ganis had been killed digging coal for the Peabody Coal Co.," she said, "his widow would have compensation. As it is, his family has nothing. We of the Progressives owe a great debt to that widow and these children and who know, we may be the next to go."

The undertaker and his assistant then lifted a blanket from the coffin, the top of which now was about level with the ground, and the band again played "Nearer My God to Thee." Andrew Jr. rose and with a pallbearer holding his MEN! LATHER MAKES YOUR SHAVING BRUSH A BLOW-TORCH!

Use a Cream that Lubricates
instead of a Lather that Irritates!

HEAPING lather on your face, Men, is almost like scorching it with a blow-torch. For lather burns and irritates, sears and shrivels. That burned-up feeling, that soreness and tenderness after shaving are the effects of lather.

Lather is soap, and soap to make it saponify or lather, contains free alkali. The free alkali is a caustic. It dries the skin, burns and irritates. It makes your face sensitive to the razor and causes it to break out in a fiery rash.

Lather not only burns your face and makes it razor-shy but, drying on the face, it makes slow going for the razor. The razor doesn't glide, but sticks, stalls, chops and digs. Hence it is, that burned by the lather and grated by the razor, your face looks and feels as if it has been massaged by a pineapple.

Shaving Civilized!

Mollé takes shaving out of the Spanish Inquisition class and makes it the art of a civilized man.

Instead of saponification, Mollé makes use of the more modern and scientific principle of lubrication.

The secret of a smooth shave is a smooth surface for the razor to travel over. Mollé lays upon the face a cream that is at once soothing, cooling and lubricating. This makes a slick path for the razor. It enables the razor to move with power and speed. The razor sweeps along like a scythe, cutting off the hairs cleanly at the base without scraping the skin. The shave is as clean as a whistle and as effortless almost as brushing your hair.

World's Noted Surgeons Meeting Here

able to their war service, dependents of veterans of our wars, and political favorites who had no part in war service."

He advised immediate and unified protest by telegram and letter to representatives at Washington, and suggested that others write to the National Economic League.

Medical Economy Advice.

Similar advice was given in an address on "Medical and Hospital Economics" by Dr. Daniel Crosby, Oakland, Cal., who suggested that the surgeons advocate the appointment of a medical advisory committee by the National Economic League, which is devoted to reduction of government costs.

"The abuse of the privileges of the 'Veterans' Bureau hospitals is becoming as well recognized that further comment is unnecessary," remarked Dr. Crosby. "The services rendered in these hospitals should be limited to diseases and injuries acquired or contracted in line of duty and to the dependents of those who made the supreme sacrifice. No energy or money should be spared to provide such skillful and adequate care that can be conceived."

The obligation of our Government should be limited to that group. If the beds in the Veterans' Bureau hospitals were used only for vacated periodical health examinations at nominal expense, commenting that it would be of public value, foster public good will and protect the industry from quackery.

"Overproduction of trained nurses, frequently 'poorly prepared and poorly trained,' is a fact," said Mary M. Roberts, editor of the American Journal of Nursing, who declared, "The old system of nursing training is outworn." "A new system is needed," she said, "that will free hospitals, which are service organizations, of the financial responsibility for conducting an educational institution—the school of nursing."

Operative surgery has about reached the limit of conceivable operations, in the opinion of Sir William L. De Courcy Wheeler of Dublin, Ireland, here to deliver the John B. Murphy Oration in surgery at tonight's meeting. He said he thought the future of the profession lay in the study of causes of disease and means of preventing it. "The next great discovery, he judged, might well concern the cause of cancer."

Another distinguished participant is Sir Wilfrid Grenfell, medical missionary in Labrador for 41 years, whose efforts to produce the materials for a balanced diet in the bleak north country have won him international distinction. An agricultural expert accompanied him on the rounds of the five hospitals he has established as medical centers. He conquered the difficult task of raising the soil, where the ground remains frozen until July, by cultivating it in both houses for transplanting after the thaw.

Besides the annual Murphy Oration, "Pillars of Surgery," by Sir William Wheeler, the presidential meeting tonight will present the formal welcome to the delegate by Dr. Everts A. Graham, of Washington, University chairman of the Anthroposaurus Committee, an address by the retiring president, Dr. Kanavel, on "Intangibles in Surgery," and the inaugural address of Dr. Squier, "Fundamentals of Spinal Surgery."

The five-day clinics at St. Louis and St. Louis County Hospitals, covering virtually every phase of surgery and several outstanding innovations developed and tested here, will begin tomorrow. The hospital conferences will continue through Thursday. A community health meeting, free to the public, will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday at St. Louis University Gymnasium, and the Congress will conclude Friday evening, when Dr. Robert A. Millikan, Nobel prize winner, will discuss "Some New Things in Physics."

Indian Moslems Reach Accord.

By the Associated Press.

LUCKNOW, India, Oct. 17.—Moslems who held a week-end conference here on electoral problems announced last night they had obtained complete agreement in their efforts to Hindoo Moslem League records. The meeting appointed a committee to negotiate with the Hindus and others with a view to ironing out differences in the way of extension of the electorate under the proposed new constitution.

Talk on Appendicitis.

Figures indicating that appendicitis deaths were drastically increased by delay in sending the patient to the hospital, and by the adoption of a laxative, were reported by Dr. John A. Bower of Philadelphia, clinical professor of surgical research in Temple University School of Medicine. In a comprehensive plan to combat these costly mistakes, Dr. Bower suggested that each hospital send physicians in contact with it an informative letter, with a warning sticker attached.

In the presence of abdominal pain, stop using laxatives. Call your family physician. Apply an ice bag or hot water bottle. Abdominal pain which persists for six hours is usually dangerous."

The problem, he said, was one of educating the public through the family physicians, who would pass the warning on to their patients. He said that the death rate from appendicitis and its complications in 66 cities in this country had increased 31.5 per cent between 1916 and 1931. The rate was 17.4 for 100,000 population in 1931, as compared with an appendicitis death rate of only 8 per 100,000 in 64 former cities.

Dr. J. Bentley Squier, New York, president-elect of the College of Surgeons, addressed the conference with the message: "The movement in American hospitals—which has been the direct outcome of our co-operation with the American College of Surgeons—has been one of the most brilliant accomplishments of medicine in the last decade."

Talk by Retiring President.

The retiring president, Dr. Allan B. Kanavel, Chicago, offered comprehensive suggestions for improving the hospital as an educational agency, commenting: "The standard hospital offers the best means of providing a continued education for physicians, and is a fertile source of information for the public."

In addition to his suggestions for training the intern, instructing the prospective specialist and providing special courses for the general practitioner, he suggested that the hospital should be a community center of interest and information to the public, by means of meetings at public or organization meetings.

"Such instruction," he said, "might well include special group classes upon domestic science, the preparation of diet in health and disease, special nursing aids, care of expectant mothers, care of babies and the preparation of their foods, lectures upon contagious diseases, the recognition of emergencies, personal hygiene and marital relationships."

He suggested also that the hospital provide facilities for the medical profession to conduct its ad-

CHIEF INSTRUCTOR OF FIREMEN DEAD

G. R. WARD, FIREMAN'S
HEAD INSTRUCTOR, DIES

District Chief Had Been With Department 26 Years — Funeral Tomorrow.

District Fire Chief George R. Ward, chief instructor of the Fire Department training school, died yesterday at St. Anthony's Hospital of heart disease after an illness of several weeks.

Ward, who was 50 years old and had been a fireman for nearly 26 years, was confined to his home at 3435 Shenandoah avenue Sept. 21 last, with a bronchial attack. Complications developed and he was removed to the hospital two weeks ago.

Appointed to the Fire Department in 1906 by his uncle, former Chief Charles E. Swingley, he became a Lieutenant three years later and was made Captain in 1913. He became a district chief in 1925 and has had charge of the training school since 1928, although he did not officially receive his title there until last year.

Since the death of Chief Charles Alt he was acting chief of the Tenth District. His appointment as district chief was made when Alt became head of the department.

While serving as Captain of the Fire Department, he participated in fighting the Christian Brothers' fire in 1916, being relieved 10 minutes before a wall collapsed killing four of his men.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Adele Ward, he is survived by a 7-year-old daughter, Betty Ann. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:20 o'clock at the Pitz Brothers' undertaking establishment, 3029 St. Peter's Avenue. Burial will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

KIDNAPING VICTIM RESCUED IN POLICE RAID; 3 MEN HELD

Boston Theatrical Supply Dealer Goes Free at Hull, Mass., After Being Captive for Five Days.

By the Associated Press
HULL, Mass., Oct. 17.—Police, in a raid on a cottage yesterday, rescued Herman F. Rutesstein, 32 years old, a Boston theatrical supply dealer, who was kidnapped from his home last Thursday.

Three men, arrested and charged with kidnapping and police throughout Greater Boston are seeking five others as members of the gang. The three said they were Joseph Gould, 24, and Walter M. Addison, 28, both of Boston, and William Harmon, 29, Brooklyn, N. Y. Police said later, however, that Gould's fingerprints identified him as Max Schecter, New York City. Rutesstein's rescuer was the same man who had been taken to Police Commissioner Harry Stevens, who at once went to the cottage with the entire Hull police force of 15 men. While two of the policemen climbed to the roof and entered the attic through a trap door, the rest of the force broke through the doors. They found Rutesstein blindfolded and bound to an iron bed, and immediately seized his three captors.

Rutesstein said he was abducted from the garage of his home by a band of hooded men who took him to the cottage and had kept him there since.

Rutesstein professed ignorance of the motive for his abduction, but told police his captors had asked him for the names and addresses of persons who might pay $50,000 for his release.

Rutesstein said he had been treated roughly and his appearance corroborated his story of mistreatment. He said he not only was bound and blindfolded nearly all his five-day imprisonment, but was gagged frequently with strips of adhesive tape across his mouth.

His captors were taken from the town. He had a week's growth of hair. He had a week's growth of hair and there were bruises on his arms and wrists from his bonds.

Police found five revolvers in the cottage. The three prisoners were turned over to Boston police.

INCREASED ENDOWMENT SOUGHT FOR WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

Chancellor Throp Points Out That Student Pays Only Half of Cost.

A plea for increased endowment for Washington University was made today in the November issue of the Alumni Bulletin, in which Chancellor Throp of the university stated that the annual cost of each student to the university was $500, with the students paying only $250 of that amount.

"Our present endowment funds can the other $250 be provided," Chancellor Throp said. "When endowment income is seriously impaired, as now, the problem becomes unusually grave. The margin between income and expenditure is always close, a sign at once of careful management and of need for endowment."

ECONOMISTS URGE PRESIDENT TO ACT
TO REDUCE TARIFF

180 of 1000 College Professors Who Advocated Hawley-Smoot Veto Sign New Petition.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—A petition asking President Hoover to take immediate steps for "reduction of excessive tariff duties" was made public yesterday by Prof. James C. Bonbright of Columbia University.

The paper, presented at the White House, bore the signatures of 180 of the 1000 economists who in May, 1930, petitioned the President to veto the Hawley-Smoot tariff.

That earlier petition, said yesterday's paper, "gave clear warning of the harmful consequences of the tariff act of 1930, with its sweeping upward revision of rates at the outset of a depression."

"We were convinced from our study of this question and from an analysis of the bill, that it would do more harm than good to the foreign trade and the domestic economy of the United States. These conclusions have been confirmed by events."

The petition said, "the record is conclusive" that both the Hawley-Smoot tariff and its 1922 predecessor "caused foreign nations to enact retaliatory tariffs directly aimed at the American market."

"The presidential office is vested with power, through negotiation and conference," it continued, "to remove unfair and discriminatory trade barriers and to promote the reduction of excessive tariff duties by diplomatic action. We respectfully petition you, after three years of depression, to institute such negotiations without further delay."

"We respectfully petition you in the present crisis to exercise the powers of the presidential office under the flexible provisions of the law, to eliminate the inequalities of the Hawley-Smoot act, especially those which are causing retaliation abroad. We urge such action convinced that it is of supreme public importance to the United States and essential to world peace."

Bonbright's announcement of the petition stated that a majority of the signers were professors of economics or political economy and virtually all held post-graduate degrees. Sixty-seven universities, colleges and research organizations were represented among the signers.

IN WEEK BY FATHER DEMPSEY

Campaign Underway to Raise $100,000 for Charities Conducted by Priest.

A total of 29,564 meals were served last week to unemployed at Father Tim's Dempsey's free lunch at 1500 North Sixth street. Breakfast and dinner were served yesterday to 4229 men.

Most of the vegetables served have to be bought now, due to their scarcity, but cocoa-flavored milk and cottage cheese are being donated by the Pevely Dairy Co. A total of 1230 pounds of cottage cheese and 2333 bottles of cocoa milk were served last week.

A campaign was launched last week to raise $100,000 or more for Mr. Dempsey's various charities, which include, besides the lunchroom, three "hotels," a day nursery for children of working women; the White Cross Crusade, to help undernourished children and supply their parents with clothing and furniture; and the Convalescent Home, which care for women leaving hospitals until they are able to return to work. Samuel W. Fordyce is chairman of the committee sponsoring the drive for funds.

THOMAS TO CONTINUE

National Headquarters Try-

Count That Straw Votes
Indicate.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Socialist national campaign headquarters entered the final three weeks of the presidential fight with its campaign machinery geared to substantially better the 2,500,000 vote mark which straw votes indicate will be won by Norman Thomas.

Clarence Senior, Socialist national campaign director, announced a speaking schedule which will keep Thomas before the voters in 14 states between Tuesday and Nov. 8. Three radio hookups will carry the Socialist message to national audiences. Senior declared. While Thomas is carrying his appeal to the 14 states, his running mate, James H. Maurer, and Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, chairman of the National Campaign Committee, will talk in nine other states.

The three major national Socialist speakers will have their efforts flanked by Socialist state, congressional and local candidates in 44 states where the candidates have an official place on the ballots. Mailings direct from national headquarters will bring pledges for Socialist voters to the remaining four states.

Radio Address Thursday.

Thomas' next scheduled national radio broadcast will come in Columbus, O., Thursday. He will speak at 8:15 p.m. Eastern standard time, over the Columbia Broadcasting System. One, and possibly two, broadcasts are being planned for the eve of election day.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Leadership of Gov. Roosevelt.

GOV. ROOSEVELT throughout this campaign has repeatedly stated that he has no quarrel with the rank and file of the Republican party, but that he does assail the leadership. In the light of this enunciation, it is highly interesting to note the existence of a similitude between the two theories of Gov. Roosevelt upon public questions and the principles expounded by President Hoover and the Republican party.

Either by direct references to the publicly expressed views and congressional messages of the President or to the principles of government set forth in the platform of the Republican party, the chief contention of the campaign is the principle of a nationally planned land survey and utilization policy, a protective and competitive tariff as a foundation for agricultural relief and industrial prosperity, the highest possible wage scale that industry can afford to maintain, effective regulation and co-ordination of the modes of transportation, whether by rail, highway, water or air, regulation of natural public utilities, the creation of a national credit and authority, for Federal Power Commission, restriction of credit and credit machinery so as to prevent their use in wholesale speculation to the ruin of investors, efficient and economic reorganization of Government bureaus, tax relief for the farmer, co-ordination of Federal, state and local taxation, public economy and relief of unemployment through economic measures designed to assist the unemployed and not through any form of a dole.

In his public utterances addressed to the American people upon the subjects of investments, agriculture, the tariff, public utilities, the railroads and social justice, one or more of these principles make their appearance. Now, the existence of this similitude creates the suspicion that the Governor does not have a mind of his own upon public questions; one of the essential qualifications for leadership. It compels the inference that he has been taking lessons in government from the very leadership he so vehemently assails, that he approves and does not condemn the policies of the administration. Therefore, he has presented no case to the American people, and having no case, how can he expect to lead?

By adding the slogan of the Republican party, the Governor is of course appealing to the conservative element of the country and is naturally bidding for the support of business. By asserting that the authority of government should be used as a birch rod for the control of economic power, that the forgotten man must be remembered in the future, that the people must have a new deal, he bids for the votes of the dispossessed and the dispossessed. Gov. Roosevelt either damns with faint or great praise or praises with faint or great damnation, permitting political expediency to dictate the degree of the praise or damnation.

The Governor has stated that there is not room in the country for two political parties both conservative. Presumably he intends to cling to the conservative. Yet while professing liberalism, he adopts conservative Republican principles. What is he and what are we to expect? Nobody knows. It is asserted that the nation needs a change—a change for what? "Sound common sense" (President Hoover) for a question mark? Never.

The Governor's vacillation between conservative and liberal doctrine, his attempt to please every class of voters from large business down to the dispossessed, has led the American people to believe that he accommodates his convictions to the demands of his followers and wisely presents no concrete program to render them effective. And the Governor has the vacuity of a real Republican leadership.

Thus, his recent trip across the country was not productive of any constructive economic policy, nor did it meet any issue of the day squarely. It was mere political barbecuing. Some deserving American citizens, instead of being really helped in this great emergency, have been deluded.

A Forgotten Man Sounds Off.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In my own opinion, I am the smartest man in the United States. Outside my own town, I am hardly known by name or deed. You can hardly know me and the remedy for this little depression, I know the answer to the bonus bond of contention. I know the solution to the debt cancellation problem. I know who will be the next President. If I could whisper these things, and some others I know into the ears of Hoover and the rest of the gang, we would have the world running smoothly and everybody happy in 30 days.

A BULWARK AGAINST JUDICIAL TYRANNY.

We disagree with the resolution, passed by the American Bar Association at its annual meeting in Washington, requesting the United States Senate to exclude any opposition to confirmation of Federal Judges based upon disapproval of the nominee's judicial decisions. The association naturally takes the legalistic view that a Judge's decisions are "rendered in accordance with precedent and in the performance of that high duty which calls for fearless and impartial determination of all issues under the established principles of law."

Such a view, in effect, postulates that the law is susceptible almost to mathematical interpretation and that, working in a formula made up of precedent, a Judge can do no other than to arrive at the correct answer. It further postulates that the Judge himself, in performing his judicial duties, divorces himself from human error, and the influences of heredity and training, and, like a disembodied spirit, pours forth justice in its purest essence.

We cannot accept such postulates, nor can we believe that there is any better standard for considering a judicial nominee than his previous record as a Judge. We do not know how the United States Senate, in passing upon a judicial nominee, could perform its function without considering his decisions.

Of course, the resolution is an echo of recent attacks in the Senate upon judicial nominees. When Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina was nominated for the Supreme bench, his decision upholding the "yellow dog contract" was successfully used to prevent his confirmation. From a strictly legal point of view, Judge Parker had a perfect defense, namely, that he was merely following the law as laid down by the Supreme Court. However, he was at liberty to note his reservation to the doctrine. He did not exercise it and, therefore, Senators considered him as approving a contract violating the rights of labor. Since Parker's rejection, the "yellow dog contract" has been outlawed by act of Congress.

Something of a sensation was caused by the senatorial attack upon Charles Evans Hughes when his name was proposed for the chief-justicehip. Many of the Senators felt that Hughes' record as a corporation lawyer had blinded him to the relative values of human rights as against property rights. The arguments used against him have largely been shattered by his subsequent record on the supreme bench, but we cannot see that the debate on his nomination was in any wise objectionable. Only by such free discussions can democracy survive.

The Bar Association's resolution is also directed against the current senatorial opposition to the nomination of Judges Wilkerson and Mackintosh to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Judge Wilkerson issued the famous Daugherty injunction in 1922 railroad shopmen's strike. Injunctions against labor have continually been used in this country as an employers' weapon to deprive workers of their rights and, at the last session, Congress passed an anti-injunction law to correct the abuse. It is cited against Judge Mackintosh, among other things, that after a mob wrecked the L. W. H. Hall at Centralia, Wash., Armistice Day, 1918, killing four persons, Judge Mackintosh publicly "expressed appreciation of the high character of citizenship displayed" by the mob. Judge Mackintosh is also charged with sharing Judge Wilkerson's attitude toward labor.

If the people must accept judicial decisions without a trial, as "fearless and impartial determination" of the issues, we are inviting judicial tyranny. A legalistic case might be made for the Dred Scott decision and, in fact, has often been made. Chief Justice Taney, author of it, was justified. But even so profound an intellect as Hughes' can do nothing for Taney against the verdict of history. The country revolted against the decision which returned Scott to slavery because it violated the good sense and good morals of the country. Of it, Abraham Lincoln said:

Familiarize yourself with the chains of bondage and you find your own limbs to wear them. And you find to trouble on the right others, you have lost the genius of your own innocence and become the fit subjects of the first coming tyrant who rises among you. And let me tell you, that all these things are prepared for you by the teachings of history. If the elections shall promise that the Dred Scott decision and all future decisions will be quietly acquiesced in by the people.

Mr. Roosevelt's candid statement now leaves no question as to where the sympathies of the social workers must lie in the present campaign.

MAKING A JEST OF EDUCATION.

The Chicago Board of Education has in its hands a petition from its unpaid school teachers asking that the schools be closed "until such time as the people of Chicago realize that the schools are their concern and their responsibility." The teachers have ringing in their ears the reply of Orville J. Taylor, a trustee, who would favor "replacing any unpaid teachers who walk out." He also adds that "there are thousands waiting for their jobs."

Mr. Roosevelt's candid statement now leaves no question as to where the sympathies of the social workers must lie in the present campaign.

BLACK TOP OUTS GRAVEL.

During the past few months the State Highway Department has made excellent progress in converting dusty gravel roads all over Missouri into smooth, clean thoroughfares. This marks a new phase of the Missouri road system. A decade ago it was intended to use concrete on only a few of the most important routes, and gravel everywhere else. The great growth of traffic has forced much extension of the concrete. Now comes the new development.

Gravel is unsatisfactory where traffic has an appreciable volume, and the department has realized that fact in time. "Black top" roads are being constructed or have been put in service in many districts. They consist of mixtures of stone and bituminous material, laid upon the old gravel. Comparatively inexpensive, these retreats give real relief from dust, mud, skidding and the danger of flying pebbles. In the picturesque Ozark section particularly, many miles of highways have been made over in this way. October sightseers are reaping the full benefit.

REMAKING THE STREETS.

One cannot visit the district below Third street without becoming convinced that the narrow streets have been a handicap to that quarter. They are tight and the remedy for this little depression, I know the answer to the bonus bond of contention. I know the solution to the debt cancellation problem. I know who will be the next President. If I could whisper these things, and some others I know into the ears of Hoover and the rest of the gang, we would have the world running smoothly and everybody happy in 30 days.

I have many opinions, but, being one of the millions of "forgotten men," my opinions are not asked, nor are they needed if I give them. No, I am not going to be buried. I am dreadfully nervous. The answer to the question is that there are millions of others, who, in their own opinion are just as smart as I am, and yet we get nothing done.

O. L. MOFFITT.

Mount Vernon, Mo.

GOV. ROOSEVELT AND THE SOCIAL WORKERS.

Gov. Roosevelt has answered directly and explicitly the questions which were put to him by 10 of the nation's leading social workers. They asked him:

(1) Whether he favored the use of Federal funds to call for and supplement local resources for emergency relief; (2) If he favored increasing appropriations for public works as a means of reducing unemployment; (3) If he favored compulsory state unemployment insurance supplemented by a system of Federally co-ordinated state unemployment offices; (4) Whether he would, if elected, support and strengthen the Federal Children's Bureau, and (5) Whether he favored the advancement of the school leaving age to 16 years, accompanied by an extension of vocational education. He answered serially:

(1) That Federal funds should be employed to relieve the distress of the unemployed when local and state resources had been exhausted; (2) That he favored construction projects which are honestly essential to the community, that such of these projects as are self-sustaining might be financed by bond issues; (3) That he favored state unemployment insurance supplemented by a system of Federal employment offices such as that proposed by Senator Wagner; (4) That he regarded the Children's Bureau as "the last place in which we should seek to economize" and favored the "continuance of its fine work," and (5) That he favored the policy of extending vocational education and keeping children in school to the age of 16.

These answers should be highly pleasing to the social workers. It is certain that they stand in sharp contrast to the policies which have been pursued by the present administration in the same field.

Where Secretary Wilbur asserted that the business depression was a blessing in disguise to American children, assuring them close parental care and "better and more sensible food" than ever before, we find Gov. Roosevelt speaking of the threat to child health and development which lies in present malnutrition.

Where Mr. Hoover undertook to emasculate the Children's Bureau by turning its health activities over to the Treasury Department, we find Mr. Roosevelt pledging himself to "continuance of its fine work."

Beside the President's consistent opposition to unemployment insurance stands the Governor's long advocacy of this measure in New York State and his initiative in organizing a conference of six Governors of Eastern states which led to the formulation of a model state unemployment insurance plan.

Side by side with Mr. Hoover's indefensible veto of the Wagner employment exchange bill stands Mr. Roosevelt's statement: "To my very great regret, this measure was vetoed by the President."

In contrast to Mr. Hoover's long opposition to and reluctant acquiescence in the use of Federal money for emergency relief, we have Gov. Roosevelt's leadership in obtaining $20,000,000 of relief money for his State by doubling its income tax rates, together with his positive expression of opinion that "society owes the definite obligation to prevent the starvation or the dire want of any of its fellowmen and women who try to maintain themselves but cannot," and that "this obligation extends beyond the states and to the Federal Government."

It is probable that Mr. Hoover, in consequence of his previous reputation as a humanitarian, enjoyed the complete confidence of American social workers at the beginning of his term of office. Time after time in the past four years—in refusing to permit the Red Cross to accept Federal funds for the relief of drought sufferers; in appointing Deak to head the Department of Labor and supporting him in his deportation delirium; in vetoing the Wagner bill; in misrepresenting unemployment statistics and in attempting the dismemberment of the Children's Bureau—he has proved himself unworthy of this confidence.

Mr. Roosevelt's candid statement now leaves no question as to where the sympathies of the social workers must lie in the present campaign.

MR. CURTIS ENLIGHTENS THE VOTERS.

Profiteering Patriotism

Should majority of veterans persist in cash bonus demand, they might as well be paid and portrayed in history as mercenaries, says novelist who served in France; admits debt to the actual victims, but thinks most soldiers found war fascinating; studying psychology of post-war letdown explains present cry for compensation.

John Erskine in the New York Herald Tribune (Reprinted by Permission.)

It is true that any large number of our ex-soldiers wish to present a bill for patriotism? If they do, would they not rather postpone the bill until the needy have been cared for? Or do they believe, because they are not in a favored class, and should not be?

If that is so, perhaps it would be well to pay the bill. The act of Congress authorizing it might provide that all our school histories should faithfully portray this profiteering kind of patriotism, which comes into the world with the least possible worry on your part. In the war goes on, it is not your fault, and the government enables you to criticize the high command or the Second Lieutenant with a surgical precision. You become, not a man of action, but a philosopher, and you enjoy your philosophy.

Let our history tell the truth about us. It is time we told the truth about war, particularly about this war as the American soldier knew it. For the soldier who escapes without a wound, war is damnable fascinating. It begins with a complete loss of responsibility, such as a mature person can enjoy nowhere else in human society. You are fed and clothed, moved about over the earth with the least possible worry on your part. In the war goes on, it is not your fault, and the government enables you to criticize the high command or the Second Lieutenant with a surgical precision. You become, not a man of action, but a philosopher, and you enjoy your philosophy.

We have not forgotten the men whose total experience of war was in the mud and the trenches, who gave service more than once, and intelligent enough to know that their best service to the country would be to put it on its feet again after the costly, wasteful struggle. Let history say that no one knows how many or how few individuals who wore the uniform insisted on having their honor commuted in cash. But if the number is large enough to throw a bad scare into the world, the sword custodians of the country will be not presenting our bills.

St. Louis

Depression which has made hard sledding for most of the big hotels in St. Louis has hurt some lodgings placed too far out of the city. Mr. Murta, a wealthy bachelor, is the owner of the "Top House" in a few St. Louisans ever heard of. He owns and operates the three largest 15-cents-a-night hotels in the city and he reports that business, what with hard times, warms up in the parks—such as sleeping places in the city and charities; is suddenly off. Two years ago Mr. Murta's biggest hotel, the Erie House at Fourth and Clark, was sold out for the night, every night, at noon. Nowadays one can drop in any time and get accommodations for 15 cents and prices have gone down with the times. That's what Mr. Murta charged 45 years ago and he has managed to keep to standard ever since. A private room, pretty near bath, can be had for from 25 to 40 cents a night and it is these higher priced accommodations which have been hardest hit, fewer tenements being on the road at present.

Push on Delivery.

MANUEL MURTA is quite a character. Despite his wealth, he doesn't own an automobile, he wears a collar but generally he prefers to dress in the same style as his guests. He was born in Pennsylvania back in 1850 something, which accounts for the name of his largest hotel. He lives at one of his other places, the Bachelder, but every morning at 3 o'clock he gets up and walks the mile to his third hotel, the Swan, a picture postcard for an inn of its sort, gets business for the day and, checking up on the night work and attending to little details like that. If business, as he finds it, is a little off, Mr. Murta still carries no red ink in his book-keeping department, which runs itself. Other hotels may allow guests to chalk up bills and do not care for the payment of their meals in the little restaurants, also very successfully. William Tracy downstays on the ground floor of the Erie House, every five years, as Tracy's mate was one of the dazzling salsas of the city.

An Old Timer.

JUDGE HORNER, having completed his downstate speaking tour, has the best of reasons for believing that he has made a highly favorable impression. Hosts of Republicans and some influential Republican newspapers have pledged him their hearty support.

It is instructive to compare his methods of campaigning with those of his so-called republican opponent, Louis Small. In his address, Judge Horner has discussed with candor and ability the major issues of the state. He has sought with considerable success, to remove the prejudice against Chicago so long cultivated by downstate politicians. He has offered a fair solution to the thorny questions of legislative apportionment. He has made no wild promises, but has assured the voters that, if elected Governor, he will serve the whole state with legitimate interest. In working faithfully for economy, efficiency and justice in government, he has made charges against Small which the latter's record does not fully substantiate.

On the other hand, Small and his principal aids have made their appeals to sectional, racial and other base prejudices. They have maligned and misrepresented Chicago, particularly the German administration, which they tried to make responsible for the credit and the growth in the state. They have attempted to shift other shoulders the responsibility for Chicago's financial plight, due principally to the waste, extravagance and rapacity of Thompson administrations in the City Hall. They have assumed that the voters of downstate communities are hate-ridden and ignorant, and ready to give credence to any baseless accusation against Chicago or Chicagoans.

Departed Glories.

ONE are the huge glass chandeliers which once graced the grand hotel. The high arched hallways have been taken up to rooms and the main dining room now has a rest-room with a radio furnish entertainment for the guests, some of whom have lived there for 50 years without a change. Herman, the old night watchman, has been there that long. But if the building is old and somewhat the worse for wear, it is not the worst of the buildings in the United States has made dependence upon children or relatives a slim hope. Few children remain with their parents, and since the depression many of the children find it impossible to help their aged parents.

"Many of the earlier provisions for old age security, such as savings accounts and purchasing of homes, have suddenly disappeared during the past few years, so the hopes for a secure old age have been completely shattered for millions of older people."

"In regard to public provisions for the aged, Missouri has far from an enviable record. The majority of the aged are still unable to afford a dignified life to a civilized state. Missouri today has 85 almshouses with about 3000 inmates. It is spending approximately $400 a year on each inmate and that is $8 cents of every dollar spent on these inmates goes into the cost of maintenance for payroll."

"On the other number of dependents in the State of New York, through a humane and adequate system of old age security, spends only $900,000 a year. The same number of dependents in California through a pension system, cost $825,000; while in Wisconsin, through a pension system, it costs only about $700,000 to support the same number of aged persons."

"Princess Alice" Denies She's Power in Politics

Mrs. Longworth in "Some Reminiscences" Scoffs at Social Lobby — Recalls White House Days in Father's Time.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth — "Princess Alice" — is not a power in politics, does not influence votes and legislation. She even wonders how such a power could come to be fastened on her, and attributes it, so far as it can be attributed to anything, to the fact that when the late Theodore Roosevelt, her father, became President, she was the first girl in the White House since Nellie Grant.

Formal repudiation of her legendary position in national affairs is made by Longworth in her personal recollection, "Some Reminiscences," of which the first installment (it is appearing in serial form) is published in the current (November) issue of the Ladies' Home Journal. The article deals primarily, of course, with her childhood, including her early days in the White House after her father had been elevated to the presidency, following the assassination of President McKinley.

Politics a Daily Dose.

That she is interested in national politics she naturally does not deny. The greater part of her 45 years, she says, has been spent in Washington, where she has come into contact with people connected with the Government, where the conversation is largely of public affairs. Politics has been a daily dish for

"There is concentrated talk on current legislation," she comments, "an extraordinary degree of curiosity about appointments, and possibly considerable grinding of minor legislative and political axes; also a certain amount of flattery. One is solemnly consulted about something on which one's opinion has no weight whatsoever. People naturally want to know the personalities of politics for whom there is always a great demand."

But aside from the attention accorded her in that manner, she played no effective part in Washington; not even socially, despite the tremendous upheaval when Dolly Gandy sought social precedence. (Of which, however, no mention is made in Mrs. Longworth's present article.)

The comments that her father's election to the vice presidency in 1900 started a reverberation echoed in the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt; she "cannot believe" that there can be any mistake as to her kinship with Franklin D. who "is my father's fourth cousin once removed." And while she has no political influence, she says "Make Us Think of What Great Stuff Humanity Is Made."

"Social Lobby? Poooh! I admit I am hazy as to the exact meaning of the term," she answers. "It seems to me that a fact cited to Missouri Voters as Argument for Old Age Pension.

While preventive medicine has lengthened the average period of life, economic conditions have shortened the earning period of the average person. This fact was established by the Constitutional Amendment No. 1, the Missouri old age pension proposal, in a radio talk yesterday by Abraham Epstein, executive secretary of the American Association for Old-Age Security.

"The number of persons 65 years of age and over in the United States has risen in the past 50 years from a little over 1,000,000 to 7,000,000," Epstein said. "The expectancy of life has increased to such an extent that most of us have a good chance to reach a ripe old age. While the period of economic independence has been continually shortened. Fewer and fewer people are able to find jobs in their old age. Indeed, most Americans today refuse to give a permanent job even to those who have just passed 35 or 40 years of age."

"The disintegration of the family in the United States has made dependence upon children or relatives a slim hope. Few children remain with their parents, and since the depression many of the children find it impossible to help their aged parents."

"Many of the earlier provisions for old age security, such as savings accounts and purchasing of homes, have suddenly disappeared during the past few years, so the hopes for a secure old age have been completely shattered for millions of older people."

MISS SKINNER HERE IN ONE-WOMAN SHOW

Actress Opens American Theater for Season With Solo Character Sketches.

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

WITH in scenes and no theatrical "parts" save a single female set upon a bare stage, Miss Otilie Skinner, daughter of the dean of American actors, last night presented an almost complete show, by herself, at the American Theater, to mark the opening of that downtown house for the new dramatic season. Miss Skinner's one-woman drama was, in reality, a succession of character sketches, ranging from Queen Henry VIII, with the very talented and charming actress portraying the six women who flashed through the life of England's much married monarch. Beginning with Catherine of Aragon, Miss Skinner presented the unhappy consort in historical order, and in her imaginary scenes with persons close to the throne, she linked up the lives of Anne Boleyn, Jane Seymour, Anne of Cleves, Katherine Howard and the third Katherine who managed to retain her head and outlive the monarch.

But while neither Henry nor any of his household appeared, she spoke, Miss Skinner, in her monologues, created very vivid scenes of their presence and gave, too, the idea that the stage was more or less full of actors and actresses. Each queen of Miss Skinner's making was in costume—her one nod to the conventions of modern drama—and the illusions of a play were complete and charming and, always, most interesting.

Before the historical one-woman solo act was presented a series of sketches which ranged from comedy to something like tragedy and in these Miss Skinner displayed her remarkable versatility and ability in a most pleasing manner.

Tonight the American Theater will close to allow Miss Skinner to journey out to the Odeon to give another performance under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the Jesuit Mission Guild.

Tomorrow night, and for the rest of the week, she will be back on the stage, changing her bill nightly.

DEAN SWEET COMMENDS PATIENCE OF UNEMPLOYED

Says They "Make Us Think of What Great Stuff Humanity Is Made."

The course and patience of the unemployed were praised by Dean Stiney E. Sweet in his sermon at Christ Church Cathedral yesterday.

"This host of men who are walking the streets today make us think of what great stuff humanity is made," Dean Sweet said. "It all seems very heroic when we realize that they are spending their energy often without hope, and yet they do not flinch. Seldom do they lay hands upon another human being, however often it may be necessary.

"We should be careful not to magnify the weakness of mankind or to fail to appreciate the great qualities of human nature. Many today have a tendency to become cynical. Let us not imagine that life rises no higher than a merry-go-round for the fun of children. We must struggle continuously, fighting one battle after another."

DR. ALEXKINE WINS AGAIN

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 17.—The eighth round of the international chess masters' tournament, contested here for the night, resulted in victories for Dr. Alexander Alekhine of Paris and Isaac Kashdan of New York, the two leaders.

Dr. Alekhine had the white side of a queen's pawn opening against J. Brunner of Mexico City, and won easily in 22 moves. In addition the world champion scored at the expense of Dr. J. Alas of Mexico in their game adjourned from the seventh round, thereby taking the overall lead with Kashdan with a score of 7½-½ each. Kashdan, playing the Cambridge Springs defense to the queen's gambit declined, to outmaneuver M. Acevedo of Mexico in 28 moves.

G. O. P. Headquarters Issues Friendly Comment on Speech.
By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK Oct. 17.—Representatives were represented as stated over what they called President Hoover's "fighting speech" at Cleveland in statements issued from the Eastern campaign headquarters.

"It is not within the capacity of the Democratic nominees to answer speeches such as President Hoover made at Cleveland," said Senator Howard of Rhode Island, Eastern campaign manager. "Thinking people have been captured by the President's devastating logic, his exposure of Democratic half-truths and malicious falsehoods, and the obvious accuracy of his own statements. We are jubilant that the President has spoken so forcefully."

Senator Hastings of Delaware passed the "ring of sincerity and patriotism" in the speech. Latory comments were made by Daniel Willard, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and Senator Barbour of New Jersey, among others.

A statement issued by John K. Tener, former Governor of Pennsylvania, which also commanded the address predicted an overwhelming victory for the Republican ticket in the election.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Republican national headquarters made public the following comment on President Hoover's Cleveland address:

Gov. Harry Leslie of Indiana: "The President talked in such a way that folks could understand. Showed himself as an extraordinary man with an extraordinary grasp of affairs—national and international."

Miss Strawn: "It (the speech) ought to clear up all doubts that the President has been exerting every effort to aid the people of the United States in these trying times."

Senator Otis F. Glenn of Illinois: "The speech was comparable to the President's speech in Iowa. It demonstrated the distinction between knowledge and ignorance; between sound and unsound judgment; between experience and experiment."

Henry Kiel, U.S. Senator: "The thing I liked best was that the President was in a fighting mood. I think a lot of the fellows who have been abusing President Hoover, believed that if they struck him on one cheek, they could hit him on the other. They found a different sort of a man."

Edward D. Duffield, president of Prudential Insurance Co.: "I regard the speech as conclusive argument for his re-election."

A. Johnston, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers: "It was logical and to the point."

A. O. Wharton, president of the International Association of Machinists: "I am heartily in accord with the president's speech."

Allen was one of six brothers, who organized a highly successful and widely known "brother" basketball team. He was a brother of Dr. Forest C. Allen, director of athletics at the University of Kansas.

The receivership was sought by

Referring to the concern's

TWO DRY RAIDERS KILL
EACH OTHER IN FIGHT

U. S. and County Men Open Fire With Pistols in Kentucky Cabin.

By the Associated Press
RUSSELLVILLE, Ky., Oct. 17.—

Federal and county officers are investigating a pistol fight in a Negro cabin late Saturday night in which Frank A. Mather, 49 years old, prohibition investigator working out of the Louisville office, and Blach Sogars, 57, superintendent of the Russellville waterworks and a special Logan County Deputy Sheriff, were fatally wounded. Sogars died an hour later and Mather succumbed yesterday.

At a private hearing before County Judge J. W. Linton yesterday, it was decided the officers killed each other and that they were the only ones who fired pistols in the cabin, which was being used by Federal officers as a corral for prisoners taken in liquor raids in the county.

Police Chief O. H. McEndree, who is a party of officers to the cabin after he said he received a report of trouble there, and Sheriff George Russell said the shooting resulted from failure of the Federal men to advise local officers of their plans or to identify themselves.

At Cincinnati W. M. Woodruff, prohibition administrator for the Sixth District, reported yesterday to Russellville. Miss McEndree, Russellville Chief of Police; Dick Taylor, night patrolman there, and Jack Kemp, Logan County Deputy Sheriff, the party of officers that entered the cabin. They were accused of conspiracy to rescue Federal prisoners, conspiracy to prevent Federal officers from doing their duty, and conspiracy to seize the property from the custody of Federal officers.

County Attorney John A. Whitaker said testimony at the preliminary hearing was that the local officers entered the cabin, found several white men and Negroes there and ordered them not to leave. Mather started toward the door. Sogars ordered him to halt, they scuffled, pulled pistols and killed each other.

In the confusion, eight prisoners taken in liquor raids yesterday were rounded up yesterday. Three other Federal men in the cabin, Investigator Marvin Fisher, Special Conductor, and W. E. Clegg, a taxicab driver for Deputy Marshal C. F. Wade, who were members of the raiding party, were held in jail overnight but released after the hearing.

Deputy Marshal Wade was out in the county with other Federal officers looking for stills when the shooting occurred in the cabin. The Federal men were sent here to raid in the county during the Logan County fair, at which Gov. Ruby Laffon delivered an address Saturday.

Louis Opp, former postmaster of Belleville, died yesterday at Belleville of a paralytic stroke. He was 70 years old.

Mr. Opp was postmaster for 12 years until 1925, when he became ill and resigned. Previously he had been a founder in the Enterprise Foundry Co. of Belleville.

Although suffering several paralytic strokes in recent years, Mr. Opp was not bedridden. He had dinner yesterday with his son and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Schmidt Jr., with whom he made his home at 425 South Virginia avenue. Surviving in addition to Mrs. Schmidt is another daughter, Mrs. Arthur Bleser, also of Belleville. Mrs. Opp died several years ago.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Elks' Club with burial in Walnut Hill Cemetery.

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The United States Marshal at Leavenworth, Kan., was instructed today by the Department of Justice to hold W. Kirby Robinson, 65 years old, pending further investigation of his surrender to authorities for 34 years. He had been committed 34 years ago.

3 KILLED IN GERMAN RIOTS

Political Clashes Occur at Berlin, Leipzig and Dortmund.

By the Associated Press
BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Three persons were killed and 20 injured in political riots in Germany over the week-end. At Leipzig, a National Socialist was killed and four were wounded. Thirty-four persons were injured in clashes between National Socialists and Communists.

In Berlin a comparatively long spell of political tranquility was broken by pre-election fights in which three were injured and 25 arrested. Trouble began at Darmstadt when a propaganda march through the working-class district was met by a stone barrage from the Communists. Police found it necessary to fire shots in the air to separate the combatants.

Chicago Tax Case Review Refused.

OBJECTIONS FILED AGAINST STEINBERG SETTLEMENT OFFER

Appeal for Objection Made by Attorneys for 27 Creditors
With $39,000 Claims.

Appeals in opposition to the settlement offer of the closed stock brokerage firm of Mark C. Steinberg & Co. were made in Federal Court today by attorneys representing 27 creditors, with claims aggregating about $39,000. Federal Judge Davis granted 10 days without a hearing for the firm to file objections.

Referees in Bankruptcy Coles stated recently that the settlement offer had been accepted by 559 out of 617 creditors, whose claims had been filed and allowed. The accepting creditors, he said, had total claims of $504,810, while the firm's schedules list about 2000 creditors, and it has been estimated that general claims will aggregate between $200,000 and $1,000,000.

Edward W. Tobin, representing 15 of the objecting creditors, renewed his application for a Federal receiver for the firm, pointing out that Referee Coles had suggested that action or the ending of the State receivership would avoid conflict between Federal and State courts.

SERVE BISQUES WHEN THE MENU IS SCANTY

Nothing Better to Make the Meal Both Substantial and Appetizing.

OUR FOREIGN FRIENDS OFFER THESE RECIPES

Swedish Meat Balls and Italian
Lemon Tart Are Good.

A rich bisque makes almost any meal a success. In fact it may be the meal provided it's luncheon or not much more will be necessary.

Never serve a bisque for dinner
if the rest of the meal is heavy.

Begin with a light, clear bouillon.

But if there is just left-overs to be converted into dinner, then it is when the bisque is welcomed.

There are many recipes. Below are three which are good:

Salmon Bisque.

One tablespoon flour.
Two tablespoons butter.

One tablespoon finely chopped onion.

One-eighth teaspoon pepper.

One tablespoon chopped parsley.

One-eighth teaspoon paprika.

One cup flaked salmon.

One cup water.

One-half cup whipped cream.

Two eggs.

Half butter and flour slowly.

Mix well. Then add onion and seasonings with butter and flour to milk and cook in top of double boiler for about 15 minutes, stir ring often. Add parsley, salmon and water. Reheat. Put cream on top of each soup plate.

Corn Bisque.

Three cups milk.

One and one-half cups canned corn.

Two slices onion.

Two tablespoons flour.

One-fourth cup cold water.

One and one-half cups tomatoes.

Four cloves.

Sprig of parsley.

Bit of bayleaf.

One-half tablespoon sugar.

One teaspoon salt.

One-eighth teaspoon pepper.

Small milk with corn and water.

Add flour mixed with cold water to form a smooth paste, stir until thickened, cover and cook 10 minutes. Rub through sieve and return to double boiler.

Cook tomatoes with seasonings

10 minutes. Rub through sieve

reheat, add butter and add slowly to the milk and water.

Clams and Tomato Bisque.

One cup and one-half pints clams.

One cup cold water.

One and one-half cups thin

cream or milk.

One-half cup water.

Four tablespoons butter.

Four tablespoons flour.

One-half cup tomato puree.

One teaspoon salt.

Place clams in strainer over saucepans and add water. Separate hard part of clams, chop fine and add to water. Heat slowly to boil ing point, simmer 20 minutes and strain through cheesecloth. Scald

cream or milk.

Cook onions and onion 5 minutes. Remove onions, add flour and gradually add clam water. Stir until boiling point is reached, add tomatoes and seasonings and again bring to boiling point. Just before serving add slowly to scalded

cream or milk.

Codded Codfish

Use the boned, salted codfish for this. Soak one-half pound overnight in cold water to cover. Drain, add fresh cold water and simmer for 15 minutes. Beat four eggs

a little pepper and four tablespoons oil. Put the fish in a double boiler, pour the eggs and milk over it and let cook for 15 minutes or until the egg mixture is firm and the fish hot. Mix lightly, turn out on a hot platter, garnish with small triangles of toast or fried bread and sprinkle with minced parsley. Serves six.

FRIDAY FISH SALADS
COMBINE TWO COURSES

Molded Crab, Salmon, Mackerel and Cod With Many Seasonings.

Soup or bouillon, followed by an appetizing fish salad and simple meat make an excellent supper on Friday when meat is banned. Main course and salad course are thus served on one.

In the following recipes, excellent results are obtained by many variations, and the salads might well be served for bridge parties or other festive occasions.

Jellied Mackerel.
One tablespoon gelatine
One cup cold water
Three tablespoons vinegar
One tablespoon sugar
One teaspoon salt
One-fourth teaspoon paprika
One-fourth teaspoon pepper
One teaspoon minced onion
One-half cup celery, cut fine
One tablespoon green pepper, cut fine
One-half cup cucumber, diced.

One can mackerel.

Soak gelatine in water and dissolve over hot water. Add vinegar and all other ingredients except fish. Pour half the mixture into a small loaf pan and when partly set add the mackerel and cover with the rest of the mixture. Chill in refrigerator. Turn out on platter and garnish with sliced lemon dipped in parsley, cucumber fingers and celery curls.

Salmon Salad.
Two cups packed salmon
One-fourth cup celery, cut fine
One-fourth cup pimento
One-half tablespoon sugar
One-half tablespoon flour
One teaspoon mustard Cayenne
Two egg yolks
One and one-half tablespoons butter, melted
Three-fourths cup milk
One-fourth cup vinegar
Three tablespoons gelatine
Soak gelatine in two tablespoons cold water.

Separate fish in flakes, add celery and pimento. Mix dry ingredients, add egg yolks, butter, milk and vinegar. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Add soaked gelatin. Pour over fish and mix well. Fill mold or individual molds. Chill until center of the mold with cucumbers marinated in seasoned sour cream or with cucumber sauce.

Cucumber Salad.

One-half cup diced cucumbers
Two teaspoons salt

One cup cold water

One cup whipping cream

Salt, paprika, tarragon vinegar to taste.

Soak cucumber in cold salted water for one-half hour. Drain. Whip cream, fold in cucumbers, pile lightly in center of fish ring salad.

Codfish in Aspic.

Three-fourths cup canned tomatoes

One-half cup water

One-fourth cup celery, cut fine

One small onion, sliced

Two bay leaves

One-half cup whole cloves

One teaspoon sugar

One-half teaspoon salt

Two tablespoons gelatin

Two tablespoons cold water

One cup codfish, canned or smoked.

Cook tomatoes, water, celery, onion and spices for 15 minutes. Remove from fire, add gelatin and water. Stir until gelatin has dissolved. Cool until mixture begins to set, then stir in fish. Pour into molds and chill until firm. Serve on lettuce, with mayonnaise.

Fish Mold Salad.

One-half package lemon gelatine

One cup boiling water minus three tablespoons

Three tablespoons malt or taragon vinegar

Salt

Pepper

Paprika

One can crab or shrimp

One chopped hard-boiled egg

Two tablespoons chopped pimento

Six sliced stuffed olives

One-fourth cup sliced celery

One can thinshell wafers

Boil gelatin which has been soaked in cold water. Add vinegar and seasoning. When cool and starting to thicken, add the other ingredients and pour mixture into a fish mold. Chill. Canola on lettuce and garnish with pimento stripes, stuffed olives and mayonnaise.

WHOLE WHEAT MUFFINS

Mix and sift one and one-half cups whole wheat flour with one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar and two teaspoons baking powder. Put back in the flour the part that remains in the sifter after sifting, since this is an essential part of the flour. Then sift again, and mix with the flour and sift again with it. Beat one egg. Melt two tablespoons shortening. Add one cup milk to the egg and stir into the flour mixture.

When mixed, add the shortening and pour into greased muffin pans, filling them a little more than half full. Bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—for 20 to 30 minutes, according to the size of the muffin pans. Deep muffins must cook longer. Serve warm. Makes six to nine muffins.

Oatmeal Cookies.

Mix together two cups brown sugar and one cup shortening; then add two cups rolled oats, one level teaspoonful salt, and one teaspoonful soda, which has been dissolved in one-half cup boiling water. Add one teaspoonful vanilla, cinnamon or any desired flavoring, and enough flour to mix soft. Let mixture stand until thoroughly cold, then roll thin, shape with a cutter and bake.

BOXES AT ROOSEVELT MEETING TO BE SOLD

Rest of Seats to Be Free to Two Public When Nominees
Speaks Here Friday.

Box seats in the Coliseum next Friday night, when Gov. Roosevelt will deliver an address in his presidential campaign, are being offered for sale by the Democratic State Committee.

The price is $25 per box and there are 75 boxes. Thus the committee expects to raise $1,875 to help defray the expense of the meeting. Its treasury is limited, each with a total capacity of about $50.

The remainder of the 10,000 seats in the hall, except for a few reserved for party leaders, will be free to the public.

Low Sanders member of the St. Louis County Election Board, who had checked an arrangement for the Democratic State convention in the Coliseum last spring, is conducting the box seat sale. He has desk space in Democratic headquarters in the Marquette Hotel.

There will be band music at the Coliseum before the speaking begins. The meeting will be called to order at 7:45 p.m. by Ruby M. Hulen of Kansas City, chairman of the Democratic State Committee. He will be followed by George W. Page, the new Democratic nominee for Governor, and Bennett C. Clark, the nominee for United States Senator. After an address by Clark, Harry B. Hawes, the retiring Senator, will introduce Gov. Roosevelt.

The subject of the presidential nominee's address has not been announced. Tentative arrangements have been made to broadcast it starting at 9 p.m.

George H. Moore is chairman of the committee arranging the meeting.

Gov. Roosevelt and his party, coming by rail from Springfield, Ill., will arrive in East St. Louis at 5 p.m. Friday. The nominee will make a 10-minute talk at East St. Louis City Hall, and then will be driven to the Coliseum Hall. The car will go over Eads Bridge, Washington Avenue, Twelfth Boulevard, Olive Street, and Lindell Boulevard to the hotel at Spring Avenue. Gov. Roosevelt will rest and dine in private. A parade of at least two automobiles from each of the 28 wards will escort the official party from the hotel to the Coliseum. The route will be east in Lindell and Locust to the Coliseum at Jefferson Avenue.

No plans have been made for entertaining Roosevelt after the meeting. His itinerary calls for his departure for Louisville, Ky., at 2 o'clock the following morning.

ASSAIS EFFORT TO REDUCE AID TO DISABLED VETERANS

American Legion Commander denies Average American Would Get Tax Cut.

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 17.—Supporters of an effort to cut Government aid to disabled World War veterans were declared today by Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, to be distributing "misleading and untrue propaganda and 'inciting class against class.'

Speaking at a department convention of legion post commanders and adjutants, Johnson denied a decrease in veteran compensation and hospitalization would "relieve the average, ordinary American of high taxes."

The payment to disabled veterans is made by the Federal Government under Federal taxes, which decreased $1,427,000,000 in the 10-year period of 1921-30," he asserted. "It is the state and local taxes, which do not go into the Federal Treasury, that the average home owner pays."

ILLINOIS SUPREME COURT DISBARS TWO ATTORNEYS

One Charged With Appropriating $300 Bond Entrusted to Him by Widow.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 17.—James W. Waukegan, attorney, was disbarred by the State Supreme Court Saturday in proceedings brought by the Illinois Bar Association which charged him with two counts of unethical conduct.

Welch was accused of failing to institute habeas corpus action for release of Charles Borre, convicted of arson, in 1930 after being paid a fee of $1,000, and appropriating a $500 Liberty bond entrusted to him by Mrs. Alice L. Spring, a Milburn, Ill., widow.

Bernard J. Mahoney of Chicago also was ordered stricken from the roll of attorneys. Unethical conduct action was brought against him by the Chicago Bar Association.

STOCK PRICES DRIFT SLOWLY DOWNWARD IN DULL MARKET

Shares Dip in First Hour, Recover Toward Midday, Then Go Lower, and the Closing Tone Is Heavy, Losses One to More Than Two Points.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The stock market drifted lower today in one of the dullest sessions since July. The closing tone was heavy, with numerous losses of 1 to more than 2 points, but the turnover was only about 900,000 shares.

Shares off about 3 points in included American Telephone, American Tobacco "B" Union Pacific, U. S. Steel, Drug, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol.

Shares down a point or so at the finish included American Can, National Biscuit, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Bethlehem, Consolidated, Goodyear Aircraft, Johns Manville, and others.

Owens Illinois Glass, however, gained 3 points.

Cotton was a poor performer in the commodities, closing with losses of 7 to 8 cents a bar. But wheat and corn closed virtually unchanged.

The principal currencies were again somewhat firmer, but the dollar with European gold currencies mostly a shade higher. Scandinavians, however, were off moderately. The Canadian dollar pushed up 1 1/4 cents to 93 3/4, the highest of the year.

Cheap Money Discussed.

Cheap money remained one of the bullish talking points in Wall street, with call loans again renewing at 1 per cent. When money was reduced to 1/2 per cent, withdrawals would, but the current experiment with the low rate has not had that effect, so plentiful is the supply of short-term funds. Banks pointed out, however, that cheap money is likely to be effective in bolstering prices and stimulating business only when other conditions favor, and that its effects are likely to be greatest.

Orthodox, the only money factor, market analysts pointed out, was the expectation that industrial earnings reports for the third quarter, soon to appear in large numbers, would be disappointing in many instances. U. S. Steel's report, due a week from tomorrow, is receiving considerable discussion.

Santa Fe's Carloadings.

The first of the important weekly car-loadings reports to appear was that of Santa Fe, which showed 29,291 cars handled during the week ended Oct. 18, another increase, for the total the previous week was 27,441 cars.

While some disappointment was expressed in Wall street circles over the latest carloading report, which registered a further gain of 3561 cars to a new peak for 1932, indices of loadings when adjusted to allow for seasonal fluctuations showed that the gain, though moderate, had been better than usual for this time of season. Usually, there is a moderate decline.

The advance in steel production which in six weeks had carried the operating ratio up 6 points, appears now to the flattening out, according to the magazine "Steel."

Automobile buying was said to have reached an unusually low point, but "building steel requirements continue bright."

REGISTRATION OF 2,334,131 SETS NEW YORK CITY RECORD

Increase of 200,000 Over 1928 Total Due to New Voters and Majority Election.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A total of 2,334,131 votes were cast in New York City during the six-day period which ended Saturday night, setting a new record. The previous high mark was 2,028,618, for the presidential election of 1928, this year's total being an increase of more than 200,000.

The increase was attributable to the normal rise in the city population and because of the greater turnout in the history of Greater New York's mayoralty election is combined with the presidential and gubernatorial balloting.

Viennese Publisher Sees Hoover.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Dr. Ernst Benedict, Viennese publisher, today paid a call of respect on President Hoover during which he discussed some matters of international interest. Dr. Benedict said he had told the President he was very popular in Austria. Dr. Benedict said: "People would have starved in Austria after the war if it had not been for the relief he helped to provide."

ROOSEVELT IN LETTER COMMENTS ON BONUS

Writes Connecticut Veteran Cutting U. S. Expenses Is First Concern.

By the Associated Press.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 17.—Dominick DeLuco, who recently asked Gov. Roosevelt to declare his stand on payment of the bonus, made public a letter today in which the Democratic Presidential nominees said that after cutting Federal expenditures, "it will be time to consider additional expenditures from any surplus in the Treasury." DeLuco is active in local veterans' affairs. The letter which he said he received from the Governor follows:

"Dear Mr. DeLuco: Evidently in saying that I had 'ducked the issue' of the bonus you did not happen to see an interview which I gave shortly after my nomination in which I spoke of this question in detail."

"I want to remind you that I served in the department of the navy, saw the war from both sides of the ocean, and am a Legionnaire and a member of other veterans' organizations myself. I stand four-square on the plank of the Democratic platform, which says: 'We advocate the full measure of justice and generosity for all war veterans who have suffered disability or disease caused by or resulting from actual service in time of war and for their dependents.'

"Let me remind you also that a nation is like a family—it cannot spend more than it receives without going bankrupt. The United States is at present spending more than it is taking in—in other words we are still in the red."

"I believe that we can cut down Federal expenditures from 20 to 25 percent by the elimination of unnecessary offices and overlapping functions of government. When this is done it will be time to consider additional expenditures from any surplus in the Treasury."

"Let me also say that I believe the return of a Democratic administration to power will, in the long run, restore the buying power not only of one group of people, but of many very sincerely,

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

SUPREME COURT WON'T REVIEW ENTIRE FLEXIBLE TARIFF LAW

Decided to Pass on Appeal Involving One Certain Feature of Section.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The Supreme Court today agreed to review a case involving the validity of certain features of the flexible tariff law, but rejected appeals questioning the validity of the entire flexible section under which the President can make changes in rates.

The Court agreed to pass on a case under which the President increased the duty of sodium nitrate imported at New York, brought by the Norwegian Nitrogen Products Co., but denied reviews of cases over cheese and straw hats involving the legality of the entire system.

One refusal to pass on the validity of the flexible provision was given in a case in which the President had increased the duty on a certain class of straw hats, imported at New York by Harry Blundamer. Another like refusal was in a case in which the President increased the duty on cheese, imported at New York by the Fox River Butter Co. A third refusal came in a case under which the President had increased the duty on certain class of straw hats imported at New York by S. Leon & Co.

A review to test whether products manufactured on the high seas are subject to import duties was refused to the Procter & Gamble Manufacturing Co.

DENIES ROOSEVELT INTENDED TO SPEAK AT LINCOLN'S TOMB

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Denial that Gov. Roosevelt "ever had any intention of making a political speech at the tomb of Abraham Lincoln" was issued Saturday night by James A. Farley, Democratic Chairman.

Farley said statements that the Democratic presidential nominee had made such plans were a typical example of the desperate and despicable measures which the Republicans are using in a final effort to stave off the overwhelming defeat they see coming."

"The Governor's itinerary on his forthcoming trip," the National chairman said, "will take him to Springfield, Ill., and inasmuch as he has never seen Lincoln's tomb, he thought he would seize this opportunity to visit it. There never was at any time the slightest idea that the Governor would have anything to say while there. He is scheduled to make a speech in Springfield. Gov. Roosevelt would be the last man to bring a political campaign to a sacred shrine."

EPISCOPAL BUDGET CUT

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A tentative budget of $2,460,000 for the Episcopal Church in 1933 has been approved by the church's National Council. The figure is a $750,000 reduction from the 1932 budget as passed at the general convention.

In an address to the council the council says that while the convention's $4,855,000 budget "is still retained as an ideal, mindful of the serious conditions which still confront us, the economies represented in the budget for 1932 have been retained in the budget for 1933."

IOWA ENGINEER MURDERED IN DENVER

TEXAS NEGRO, REFUSED VOTE IN PRIMARY, SETTLES FOR $1

Agrees to End $5000 Action Which Was Sent Back by U. S.

Supreme Court.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 17.—The $5000 damage suit of Dr. L. A. Nixon, El Paso Negro physician, against El Paso election officials who refused to permit him to vote in the 1928 Democratic primary has been settled for $1 and costs.

The action, including C. H. Kolin and James Condon, Dr. Nixon said he was satisfied because he was "fighting only for a principle."

It was the second time Dr. Nixon had been victorious in court action involving his right to vote in Democratic primaries. Both cases were carried to the United States Supreme Court. This case was remanded to Federal District Court.

As a result of the Supreme Court decision, Negroes in El Paso, followed by the Democratic party in Texas since reconstruction days in barring Negroes from the Democratic primaries was overthrown and in the August primary this year Negroes were allowed to vote in many counties.

BEHIND THE SCREENS
By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—In this unreal place: One of the oddest bits of casting recently made, that is, unless you know your precedents—is for the role of Roland Young in the pickpocket Ratay in "The Billion Dollar Scandal."

Young hitherto has been the polished comedian of the wealthy, the sophisticated observer, even the pompous king in a goldbrad uniform, but nobody until now has dreamed of placing him in an underworld setting. Producer Charles R. Rogers is doing it.

It was Director Lewis Milestone who freed Adolphe Menjou from type in "The Front Page," and Director Cecil B. DeMille who put sweet and pretty Claudette Colbert in the garb of siren empress. Now, long after the fallow named Gable stepped from the ranks of the heavens, given his hero's role by the greatest discoverer of all, the public.

If Tallulah Bankhead changes studies when her contract with Paramount expires soon, her checkered movie career should profit or she will be the exception. There is no doubt that she will sign with M-G-M, provided that lot can find a suitable vehicle for her.

Such a change of scenes worked wonders for Betty Davis, who was released from Universal, but went to Warner Bros., where her latest of many assignments is to support James Cagney in "Bad Boy."

Equally advantageous to George Brent was his shift to Warner Bros. from Fox by way of Universal, and Richard Dix's jump from Paramount to Radio brought him a new career.

RALPH BELLAMY, his option passed by Fox, probably will not suffer. Outstanding work in every production in which he appeared has distinguished his movie career.

Bellamy's departure from Fox is for the same cause which probably will free Ann Harding from her contract when the option comes up in January. Miss Harding has an agreement to call for a substantial increase at each renewal. Nowadays it takes a Garbo to get a salary boost, so Miss Harding doesn't expect her Radie connection to survive option time.

If William Wallace Reid Jr. decides on acting as a profession, now that he actually is to make that long-talked-of starring picture, he will succeed as his father did largely on the strength of his personality.

THE picture is to make for Willis Kent, independent producer, to be one of those classic adventure tales which made his father, the late Wallace Reid, popular. And Bill Reid, as he is known to his family and friends, isn't the least bit dejected that it is to be an automobile racing story. Bill is eternally tinkering in the family garage.

Wallace Reid, although his father before him was Wallace Reid Jr., was an actor, never liked the act, says Dorothy Duncan, Reid's mother of Bill. "Wally used to say," she told me, "that he wished he would grow bald and fat in a hurry so he could start directing. Wally never really acted—he was just himself, and that's what Bill did if he is to succeed."

Mr. Reid used to be quite an important actor himself, but lately his efforts have been centered on production as an independent. "It isn't that I wouldn't like to act," she said, "but nobody ever thinks of me as an actress anymore. There's too much competition in acting nowadays, anyway," she smiles.

Jack Warner comes forth with the suggestion of an "idea registry" to prevent the pernicious movie cycles which are one of the recognized evils of Hollywood production. He also mentions the "personal honor of producers" in the matter of respecting the prior rights of first announcements and story purchases.

He affects to ignore the suggestion, has, in general, would welcome departures from the cycle. One of the most common complaints from their direction is against the repetition of themes in half a dozen pictures at the same time.

"Just another columnist movie," and they walk by the boxoffice.

SYLVIA STILES GOES to the ST. LOUIS HORSE SHOW
Sketches of Actual Costumes Worn by Maids and Matrons

AITHRA HOLLAND

By SYLVIA STILES

SUITES carried away the blue ribbons among smart costumes worn by St. Louis women who attended the annual fall horse show at the Missouri Stables Arenas last week. Thoroughbred entries among suits were so pronounced, however, that this type of costume deserved not only first but second honors. Sports dresses of lovely soft woolens won third distinction, many of them worn with short fur jackets. Full-length coats and silk dresses had to content themselves with fourth place.

Competition between the suit with short jacket and the one with three-quarter or even longer jacket was so keen that the most careful judge would have found it difficult to determine which should get first and which second honors. Numerically the score was about even but many of the dressy suits were of the short-jacket type while the stately sports costumes included the longer coat.

There has been much discussion of suits as a leading style factor this autumn but it took the horse show to demonstrate how generally this costume has been accepted by St. Louis women who choose their clothes with ease and discrimination. For suits with their air of casualness seem to harmonize with such informal accessories as of the small areas where horse lovers met to cheer their favorites and to greet their friends. A few spectators were dressed for later dancing so several costumes of were hats matching the suit or dress in color and fabric. Variations of the sailor were prevalent for this type of hat is designed primarily to complement suits. Those who preferred dresses to suits usually preferred turbans to brims.

Sketched above are some of the outstanding costumes worn on the opening night.

An interesting version of the suit made in black and white is illustrated at extreme lower left. Mrs. J. L. Nelson is seen wearing a suit of black suede wool with hip-length jacket trimmed luxuriantly with ermine. The fur forms an unusual cap collar in the back and wraps itself about the sleeves where it is clasped with an ornate buckle. A black belt of medium brim is banded with white velvet ribbon, a tailored belt in front. Black kid pumps with patent trimming, and white suede gloves are smart accessories.

The next sketch shows Miss Betty T. Thomas in the costume she wore to win first honors in the heavy harness single class when she drove Double Check, owned by Missouri Stables. Her black suit is banded and collared with black turban in the black patent leather bow.

Mr. Frank R. Tate is the smartly attired matron appearing at right in the circle. She sponsors the suit mode, choosing a black knitted wool fabric feathered lightly in white to give it an Oxford gray appearance. White knitted gray motifs decorate the front of the blouse. Her small brimmed hat is banded forward. A silver fox scarf is draped about her shoulders.

Miss Norma Engle, one of the outstanding blue ribbon winners of the show, appeared in three different costumes—in riding skirt to carry off first honors; side-saddle in the three-gated class for ladies; and in the conventional black riding skirt to carry off second honors. The large, self-covered buttons and the high necked blouse. The sketch at extreme right shows Miss Engle in a frock of red wool which uses large white buttons for a striking trimming, and adds a clever loop collar. Her hat and shoes are black. At the left of Miss Engle is Miss Margaret Rumsey, her black dress made unusually attractive by a close-fitting white frill. Her tiny black hat is a linen and lace jabot collar. A whimsical touch to reveal her hair.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX.

MONSEUR DE BERNIS, who never in all his adventurous life had been more alert and watchful than in the last few moments, expecting precisely this development, and exercising his wit as to how to meet the onslaught when it came, drew closer to Miss Priscilla until his arm touched her shoulder.

"It comes now, this danger," she heard him murmur. "Stand firm, and do not be afraid."

With that he stepped forward boldly to meet this human wave that was sweeping forward to engulf him. Very straight he stood, his chin high, his plumed hat slightly cocked, his left hand resting on the hilt of his long rapier, so that the weapon made a right angle with his body.

Wildly clamouring that fierce wave—that mob of close upon 200 men—came to break and recoil a little at his very feet. A sea of angry, evil faces confronted him; curses and foulness almost deafened him; brawny bare arms were outflung towards him; fists were shaken in his face, and one that was fairly close quarters who brandished a mache as if to cut him down.

He stood like a rock before it, dominating them by his height and his intrepidity. His voice rang like a trumpet, clear and sharp, audible even above their howls.

"What's here?" he demanded. "You fools! Do you attack the man with the wit to save you from this?"

Their hosts fell to a mutter, a rumble as of receding waters, and presently it was still so that they might hear him before they made an end of him. Bundry, he saw, was trying to break his way through to the front rank. And presently that clay-faced, resolute shipmaster struggled up to him and then turned to wave his rapier at Bundry. Bundry had all had a practical mind. He was not a man to be swept by passion into blindness. Never in any situation did he lose sight of the essential thing.

"Wait! Back there!" he croaked at them. "Give us air! Let's hear what Charley has to say." And he turned to De Bernis. "What are these ships? Do you know?"

"Don't you know? The leader there is the Royal Mary, Morgan's ship. They are all three of the Jamaica squadron. We've Morgan on our hands. Sir Henry Morgan. But he comes too late for what he seeks. It's Tom Leach he's hunting."

They roared at him that they, themselves, still remained to be brought to account, and how did he suppose that they would fare at Morgan's hands?

"I know, I shall fare," he answered them, and he actually laughed as he spoke, though with more than a touch of bitterness. "There's no doubt at all on that score. No need to be a prophet to foretell it. So if ye want to cut my throat, so as to thwart Morgan of the pleasure of hanging me, by my faith, ye're welcome. I dare say it will be the pleasant end."

THIS reminder that, whatever might befalls any of them at Morgan's hands, he, who had been Morgan's Lieutenant, and who, deserting, had taken to the sea again and gone a-roving in their company, would certainly meet with no mercy, gave them no argument by which he could have made a stronger appeal to their sympathy.

And then, suddenly, Wogan came sliding through them. He had come from cover with several fellows at his heels, intent as most that they were intent upon making a scupper for De Bernis. Intent that since destruction perhaps awaited most of them. De Bernis should certainly not escape, but should be the first to pay.

And there he stood, tall and lanky, threshing the air with his long arms in his excitement as he pouted forth his venom.

"Let me talk as he pleases, it's Toperlant Charley's right to that for this. It was he who brought us here! It's his fault, so it is, that we're caught with never a keen under us; trapped like rats in a gin and helpless at the mercy of Morgan!" He flung out an accusing arm, so that his hand almost struck Monsieur de Bernis in the face. "What Charley's doing! Bad case to him!"

With that he thought to destroy De Bernis and might have destroyed any man less prompt and resolute. As it was, and as he was presently to learn, he merely supplied De Bernis with a weapon at once defensive and offensive.

With that rage which Wogan fanned in those wild, ruffious souls could blare forth. De Bernis was answering him, and by tone and manner and very words was compelling attention.

"Will you make a scupper of me for your own blundering incompetence, you lubberly oaf?"

He paused upon that question when he struck Wogan dumb with amazement and arrested the attention of all. Then, with an increasing vehemence, with a simulation of indignation, he went on to scold the Irishman.

"A man may have both, and yet want for invention," said de Bernis.

"If ye can invent anything as'll help us Charley," cried Halliwell at the ponderous shipmaster's elbow. Bundry, dry and snappy, at his side, made an interjection.

"Faith! It'll need a mort of considerin'!"

"Courage, Bundry! There's no reason yet to despond."

"I don't want for courage!" Bundy snapped back. "But I don't want for sense either."

"A man may have both, and yet want for invention," said de Bernis.

"If ye can invent anything as'll help us Charley," cried Halliwell.

"We'll follow you to hell after this!"

And from the men came a roar of confirmation to encourage de Bernis. His brow was dark with thought. He turned his shoulders upon Wogan, who, shaken and still trembling from the fright he had sustained, had fallen back a little.

He paused, and this time no fear of interruption made him hurry to resume. He knew that what he had said must have given Morgan a warm welcome.

SO the EARL'S SON WENT TO WORK as a CLERK

His Mother Is One of the World's Most Beautiful Women and His Grandfather a Famous Financier, but Young Viscount Maidstone Begins His Career Quite Humbly in a Philadelphia Bank.

LADY WINCHILSEA, the former Margaret Armstrong Drexel, mother of the "Viscount Maidstone" who is now working as a bank clerk.

Drexel, his grandfather, in America.

At that time he stayed only a very short time, was entertained at all the fashionable resorts, and made many a debutante's heart go pit-a-pat. However, he went home to England fancy-free and he came back to Philadelphia for a while "to broaden his viewpoint."

THE likelihood is that Lord Maidstone will remain in America until the death of his mother, Marjorie Gould Drexel. Marjorie will have an elaborate series of coming-out parties given for her in New York and Philadelphia, and society editors say that her debut promises to be one of the most "important" events of the fall.

That's only natural, for Marjorie's background there are the undivided fortunes of her two grandfathers, the Drexels and the late George J. Gould.

It's an interesting coincidence that these two young cousins, the American Marjorie and the English lord, should be in the news at the same time. They both happen to be extraordinarily beautiful and talented mothers who were girlhood chums and made front page news 22 years ago when they all three married men of their own ages. Just two weeks apart, the one to an English lord, the other to an American millionaire.

In the meantime, they have intermarried, he with a woman who is the wife of a messenger.

On the contrary, the young English noblewoman who is now living in England and observing American methods of banking is to be found in a large room, where, as plain Maidstone, he occupies one of the numerous flat-topped desks used by all the score of clerks in London.

There, Christopher Guy Hensage Finch-Hatton—that's the full name of the 21-year-old Britisher who is on the point of becoming the fourteenth Earl of Winchilsea and the ninth Earl of Nottingham—can be seen busily adding figures, reading financial items and attending to the other chores which fall within the precincts of a banking clerk, or "clerk," as he and his fellow citizens choose to pronounce the word.

Viscount Maidstone went to Philadelphia to study Western finance methods, not because he couldn't learn the banking business through enough of it in his old London town, but because finance has come to be such an international affair that it seems best to see how other countries handle it.

He was never allowed to tell them. For here, Wogan, quivering with fury, interrupted him. "It's a lie! Don't be listening to him! He never advised it at all! It's a lie!"

"It's a lie!" quoth de Bernis. "It's a lie!"

"But my faith, what were you doing, what were you and he doing, that you did not think of it?"

"It was the chancery court and you were at Hibernia," Wogan.

"And between you lay the responsibility for the safety of your men."

"How does it happen that neither you nor he thought of it?"

"It's a lie!" quoth de Bernis.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 18.—At least two persons, including two patrolmen, were injured when several hundred unemployed citizens and institute farmers rioted, late yesterday, in the Lucas County courthouse here.

Hand-to-hand fighting broke out when a group of policemen and their deputies attempted to eject
the crowd after its members refused to leave the building until given relief. Several of the rioters and policemen were knocked to the ground, trampled upon, kicked and bruised.

Patrolman William Bedach was knocked to a hospital with bruises on the head and neck, and pains from being kicked in the abdomen. Police Captain Clarence Mead was knocked on the neck. One rioter was knocked unconscious and suffered a gash on the head. A woman in a member of the crowd was kicked and knocked down a stairway, and several others were beaten and bruised.

The crowd was stationed in the second floor corridor at the foot of the main staircase when, at the closing hour of the courthouse, the officers attempted to eject them and shoved them to leave.

Mobilizing into a closely packed group, the demonstrators shouted their willingness to leave. The police moved forward and the combat started.

Women in the crowd stood defiantly through the fighting, screaming denunciations at the officers. Women glasses at the door were broken.

Finally the police arrested Lowell
Watson, 30 years old, and John Martinez, 56, and dragged them fighting and struggling across the courthouse lawn to the nearby
Safety Building. The crowd followed on to the lawn.

The arrested men were charged with assault and battery and with resisting arrest. Watson, leader of the Lucas County Council of Unemployed, and police said several members of the crowd were Communists. Most of the crowd
